COWLEY HAPPENINGS

Lloyd Morrison has gone to Bellevue to attend high school, taking Grade XII.

Miss Clare Bundy left on Thursday of this week for Edmonton, where she will attend high school for the fall term.

After spending several weeks in British Columbia, Joe Wilson has returned.

Mrs. Latta entertained the Ladies' Aid of the United Church at her home on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 2. Owing to the busy season, several of the ladies were unable to attend.

Threshing was begun in this district the early part of the week.

Miss Dorothy Dwyer, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dwyer, of Cowley, whose wedding will take place at the home of her parents this Saturday to Mr. McQuarrie, of Coleman, was honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower, sponsored by the Cowley Girls Club, which was held in the Masonic hall on Wednesday night, September 1st. The early part of the evening was devoted to cards, court what being played, at which prizes were won as follows: Ladies' first and consolation, Mrs. M. A. Murphy and Miss Marie Wood, while the gent's prizes went to Mr. A. Murphy and Jack Bundy. Dick Alexander acted as master of ceremonies, and Mr. Murphy made the presentation speech to the bride-elect, to which she replied very fittingly, expressing her thanks for the many beautiful and useful gifts.

A couple of hours spent in a lively dance brought a most pleasant event to a close. Music for the dance was supplied by Mrs. James Smith, Jr., Miss Edith Murphy and Alvin Murphy.

Mr. H. L. Jordan, Lethbridge manager of Western Grocers Limited, was a visitor to the local warehouse, conducted by Mr. W. A. Vaughn, yesterday.

BELLEVUE ANNUAL

FLOWER SHOW

Prospects are bright that this season's exhibition of flowers, vegetables, etc., to be staged in the Bellevue Arena on Monday next will surpass in number and quality of exhibits anything in the past.

The weather man has been most favorable, and as a result Bellevue has today some of the finest gardens of flowers and vegetables to be seen in Western Canada.

Coupled with the exhibition, which will open at 1 p.m., will be the usual programme of field events and the great windup dance in the I.O.O.F. hall at night.

Well, all roads will be leading to Bellevue on Monday, September 6th, 1937.

TRAVEL BARGAINS TO THE PACIFIC ANNOUNCED, C.P.R.

Those who are planning early Fall vacations will welcome the announcement of Bargain Fares to the Pacific coast by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Tickets will be on sale September 4th to 12th inclusive, with thirty days return limit, and will permit stopover at Calgary, Nelson and stations west.

A feature of these fares will be the privilege of tourist or standard sleeper at slightly higher rate than usual berth charges. The special cent-a-mile fare, good in coaches, will also be available.

The early Fall is usually a delightful time to visit the coast, and present indications point to a record travel. Those contemplating the trip would be well advised to get in touch with Mr. Passmore, local agent, as early as possible.

COURIER PLEASES

FORMER MOVIE MAN

J. S. MacEachern, former movie businessman, now residing in Lethbridge, has written a letter congratulating the Cranbrook Courier staff in its good fortune in being awarded the Clark cup. His letter winds up with this comment:

"The increasing readability of your paper adds considerably to its usefulness for all classes of readers, and makes it a good medium for advertisements."

The editorials are always of liberal thought with a thoroughness which is much needed in a weekly newspaper. This was shown in the editorials in the way you shared the honor with the city and district.

"May I express a hope that some day you may be a close rival of our Lethbridge Herald."

"With best wishes for continued luck, and a restful evening!"

ANOTHER ROYAL COMMISSION

There is no question of the need of a Royal Commission to consider the relations of the Dominion to the provinces of Canada. The recent situation in Alberta, which caused the Ottawa government to use its power of disallowing provincial legislation, emphasized the need of a careful survey of the situation. The terms of reference instruct the commission to study and report on "the economic and financial basis of confederation in the light of social and economic developments in the last seventy years." Unfortunately, the commission is limited in its scope. It is confined to studying the present arrangements and suggesting ways in which they can be made more equitable. There is no suggestion that the government suspects the soundness of the underlying system. And yet, in the face of evidence, more and more people feel convinced that something more fundamental is involved than the distribution of the burdens of debt and taxation. —The New Outlook.

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(By C. B. Windross)

Edmonton, Aug. 30.—Remarkable methods employed by the government and its key employees in construction and administration of Alberta highways were disclosed last week in Edmonton during the first week's sittings of the royal commission investigating road work in the province.

The investigation, presided over by Mr. Justice H. W. Lunney, is continuing and expected to conclude this week. It has special reference to the construction of the Edmonton-Wetaskin and Edmonton-Jasper highways last year.

Fact that the province forfeited $162,000 of a federal highway-building grant last year, because Premier William Abernethy and Public Works Minister W. A. Fallow did not inform their subordinates of the terms of the federal-provincial agreement, during four months of the construction season had passed, was a highlight of the evidence during the past week. The premier and Mr. Fallow, it was testified, had been informed of the terms of the agreement early in the year. The agreement provided that 50 per cent of the men employed on road construction were to be recruited from among relief recipients. The dominion was contributing a grant of $403,000 to be expended, dollar-for-dollar with the federal government, on highways where that proportion of relief employment was maintained.

Construction work started in April but it was the end of July before the deputy minister or the highway commissioner in the department of public works learned about the requirement of 50 per cent relief labor in order to qualify for the grant.

When they finally did hear about it, they learned it only from Ottawa directly rather than from their superiors in the provincial government. By that time much of the construction work had been completed without relief labor. When the province claimed its grant for those sections of road, the federal officials could write in only "Figures not yet available" in the space provided for a certificate as to the percentage of relief labor.

Ottawa compromised by agreeing that the full grant would be paid if the men who had been employed came within the terms of the provincial-dominion agreement, instead of the 100 per cent which the premier was quoted as having advocated in the Ottawa conference before the season opened.

Instead of handing over $403,000 to the province, the dominion withheld $102,000 of it. And many men on relief, for whom the dominion had intended employment, had gone without work.

In addition to losing that part of the grant, the province was faced with the necessity of continuing to maintain those who had been employed.

Mr. Fallow refused to produce the files bearing on the matter—the correspondence between himself and the dominion—when was requested by counsel for J. J. Bowlen, M.L.A., whose charges on the floor of the legislature first precipitated the investigation.

Another startling piece of evidence produced during the week was that showing that a return to the legislature—a formal statement of information which the house had requested—contained false figures.

It was testified that when Mr. Bowlen had sought information from the department of public works privately on the subject of the cost of building the Edmonton-Wetaskin highway, Mr. Fallow told his deputy minister that the information could not be given out until it had been requested by the legislature as a whole. That development came a few days later, and the deputy minister had the information prepared. The statement did not contain the true facts, on the basis of the grading which had been done, but stated that the information was available. Mr. Fallow instructed the deputy to hold up that statement too.

After that deputy had been dismissed a few weeks later, and the legislature renewed demands for the information on road costs, Mr. Fallow's new statement was prepared.

A. P. Paull, office engineer in the department, told the royal commission that on instructions of the new deputy, drew up figures on the basis of average costs of building other highways the previous year.

Although purporting to represent the costs of grading the Edmonton-Wetaskin highway, they actually bore no relation to that road, he admitted on the witness stand.

The figures which he drew up under instructions, and which were presented to the legislature, represented that the costs of grading the highway was 24.9 cents per cubic yard, when the actual cost was 29.9 cents per cubic yard, while another set

CANADA YEAR BOOK, 1937

Canada's official year book for the year 1936-37 is now off the presses and ready for distribution. They will be supplied, as long as copies are available, to the public by the King's printer, Ottawa, at the price of $1.50. This covers merely the cost of paper, press work and binding, and leaves no margin available for advertising the volume in the ordinary way.

By a special commission, teachers and ministers of religion may obtain paper-bound copies at 50 cents each, but only a very limited number has been set apart for this purpose, and early application is desirable.

Of figures showed a cost of 33.5 cents on the Leduc-Millet section.

Although the estimate for building the whole 35 miles had been set at $265,000 by the highway commissioner, who was subsequently dismissed, the actual cost was $255,000, and only 25 miles of the projected 38 had been completed, it was shown.

The former deputy minister and the former highway commissioner testified that they had been kept in ignorance of many new things in the highway program. Key officials who were supposed to be subordinate to them were hired without their knowledge or approval, and in some cases they learned of the appointments only when the paychecks came in. Neither did they receive instructions from Mr. Fallow; instead, he gave orders direct to men he had appointed on the road.

Joseph McKone, who testified that he had been a close friend of Mr. Fallow for 30 years at Vermilion, and whose only previous experience in road-building had been as a "foreman" or "pathmaster" of a township crew working out taxes in Manitoba 14 years ago, followed by street-maintenance in Vermilion and by construction of "60 or 70 rods" of private road near that town, was appointed by Mr. Fallow as "general foreman" in charge of the Jasper highway work.

On the witness stand, Mr. McKone admitted that he habitually signed paychecks without examining them; that he had appointed another "general foreman" without consulting anyone—that man being put on the government payroll, although at the same time he was the contractor to whom Mr. Fallow gave the contract for crushing and spreading gravel without arranging prices.

Mr. McKone also admitted that from April to October he drove 12,000 miles in a government car allowed eight cents a mile, beside his wages as general foreman. It was brought out that at one time the Jasper highway camp was carrying on its payroll two general foremen, one foreman, seven sub-foremen and three timekeepers. He also placed a government-paid man on duty at a filling station to look after contractors' trucks, he said.

Mr. Fallow had instructed him to give three cents to each man and give them foremen's jobs, Mr. McKone said, but had never told him to give preference to government supporters who wanted jobs. He "sure wouldn't" have got his job if Mr. Fallow had not been elected and "got his government job" as a minister, he said. Mr. McKone is now working for one of the construction companies holding a contract with the government, and is being paid $250 a month, plus his automobile expenses.

Another witness testified that an old automobile which had been converted into a truck, but still could not carry a heavy load, was hired by the government from an oil company agent at a rate of 89 a day. Essentially, this witness said, a crew of five government-paid men equipped with a tractor and a wagon were sent on an expedition to get firewood for one of the contractors' camps. Each trip cost the government $30 in wages and tractor hire to get one wagonload of firewood for the contractor, said the witness.

There were many other startling bits of evidence during the first week of hearing. One statement showed that 10 trucks had been sold to the department of public works by an old friend of Mr. Fallow, for instance. Another said that timekeepers on the government payroll were instructed to keep books for the contractors. Another testified that although it was known that the day-labor system of road construction, which Mr. Fallow adopted as his policy would not be as cheap or as efficient as the contract system by which a company could be held responsible for the finished job with any employment or wage conditions which the government might require, no official of the department opposed the minister's policy. It was testified that in contrast to the Edmonton-Wetaskin grading cost of 29.9 cents per cubic yard, that on a similar highway in the south, built by a contractor, was 11.9 cents.

Every witness heard during the week testified that he had no knowledge of any commissions or bribes being taken by any official in charge of road work. The witnesses testified the two highways under review were among the best—though not the best—in the province.

Mr. Fallow himself is expected to be called as a witness near the close of the royal commissioners' investigation.

HARVEY MURPHY IS STILL BUSY

It is an offense to publish false news. There are strong reasons why the Criminal Code of Canada should make the spreading of false information an offense. False rumors can, and often do, cause almost immeasurable damage. Not often, however, is the law invoked, which makes a case at Peterborough, Ont., worthy of comment.

Harvey Murphy, president of the Ontario Federation of Unemployed, was arrested by Peterborough police, charged with publishing false news regarding an incident during a recent strike riot.

Murphy, police claim, spread a statement that 17-year-old Irena Reid had been injured about the face by tear gas, released by city or provincial police officers, as they battled the strikers who were attempting to stop other workers from appearing on the job.

Police claim the young girl was suffering from impetigo, which had caused her face to break out in a rash.

The warrant was issued by police on advice of D. J. McDermid, county crown attorney.—Ferne Free Press.

A situation, probably unprecedented in the history of the province, has arisen at Vulcan, due to the attitude taken by the Vulcan school board toward a teacher who had been dismissed at the time of the closing of last school term. The teacher appealed to the board of reference, and was ordered reinstated. Now the school board has announced its intention to stand firm not to accept the teacher, despite the order of reinstatement from the minister of education on advice of the chairman of the board of reference. It is probable the case will yet be taken before the courts for a final decision.

An Insurance Policy

Writers in some of the Eastern Canadian publications are spinning a lot of ink on the subject of conditions in the prairie provinces and are advocating drastic measures, even to the extent of abandonment of the land to its original inhabitants, the gophers and the Indians.

In some articles, quite patently written by authors not fully conversant with the situation, it is suggested that the soil has been robbed of its fertility—it is played out, in fact, and is no longer capable of producing crops even if an abundance of moisture were available.

The people on the ground, the farmers and businessmen resident in the prairie provinces, are not likely to be stampeded by any such suggestion. They know better. They are fully aware that, given the essential moisture at the right time, the prairies are capable of producing quality grains in great abundance and this is being demonstrated to the world in the Province of Manitoba and in comparatively small areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta this season.

The findings of Captain Palliser in his report on the entire area to the British government, 1856 to 1860, have been confirmed recently in surveys made by the Dominion Forestry Service and the Seale Grain Company, the latter based on observations and records over periods ranging up to 60 years.

These reports demonstrate that what Palliser designated as the "semi arid" belt, taking in roughly the open prairie areas of southern Saskatchewan, southern Alberta and southwestern Manitoba, have yielded 13.25 bushels per acre on a long time average from eleven million acres in wheat on an average precipitation of 10.38 inches per annum, exclusive of snow-fall, compared with the average yield of 19 bushels an acre in what Palliser termed the more northerly "fertile" belt on an average rainfall of 12.63 inches over nine million acres seeded to wheat.

These territories and figures do not include what now may be regarded as a definitely arid area in which four million acres have been seeded to wheat.

Excluding the latter the long period records show that in the so-called semi arid belt a crop failure from drought may be expected on an average of one year in four and in the fertile belt an average of one failure in nine years.

As pointed out by Major H. G. L. Strange in an article in "Canadian Business" these crop failure years do not occur with mathematical regularity but, and particularly in the case in the semi arid belt, sometimes in cycles of two, three or even more years in succession.

While Major Strange is assured that this year marks the culmination of drought severity and crop loss he does not go into the causes of the cumulative drought of the past few years, but there can be little doubt that its severity has been aggravated by cultivation methods over a period of years which have involved the drainage of the multiplicity of sloughs which in former years dotted even the semi arid area.

What has happened is that the earlier settlers found that they could, at least in good years, harvest very large yields in the proximity of the sloughs and came to the conclusion that areas covered by water were so much waste land which, if drained, could be made to yield heavy crops. Accordingly all over the prairies these sloughs were drained off and the land beneath these moisture nurseries was converted into wheat fields.

Fortunately what man has done can be undone, though it may be a long and painful process. The country to-day faces the problem of restoring these natural basins so that they, in the course of natural processes, may transpire moisture to the atmosphere and aid in the formation of rain clouds. Some attention is being given to this phase of the problem by the P.F.R.A. which, as Major Strange says, is "settling about the problem in a vigorous and effective fashion."

This work, however, does not solve the whole problem for the semi arid area or even the fertile area which, according to statistics, are subject to crop failures in every four and nine years respectively. The problem for the farmers in these recurring dry years can only be successfully solved by making available large quantities of water which can be stored and drawn upon when needed in the form of irrigation projects.

Irrigation projects, large and small, wherever feasible must be resorted to as a supplemental to the restoration of shallow waters in natural basins, as an insurance policy against losses in future drought years whether they come singly or in cycles.

Such an insurance policy put into effect to its maximum degree and within the bounds of economic feasibility will place agriculture on the prairies on a more assured basis, provide work for many who need it, eliminate dead-loss direct relief expenditure and do away with all talk of abandonment of land, except for a very small area which never should have been broken by the plow.

Old Controversy Revived

No One Knows How Peppys Pronounced His Name

The old controversy over the pronunciation of the name of Peppys has been revived once more in the correspondence columns of the London Observer. Ought it to be Peeps, or Peppis, or Pepe? One correspondent has even discovered a contemporary verse in which it is made to rhyme with "lips" but this may, of course, have been only poetic license.

No one can answer the question definitely now, at least no one can adduce proof positive. Indeed it must have been a problem to Peppys' contemporaries; for they spell his name in no less than seventy different ways and since the spelling of proper names was apt to be somewhat phonetic in those days this seems to indicate some difference of opinion as to its pronunciation.

It is odd that he, who told us in such a wealth of detail about himself should have left this point to be disputed.—Christian Science Monitor.

Requirements Not Known

Thatcher Wheat May Be Obtained For Drought Area Farms

Efforts are being made by the Saskatchewan Government to obtain as much Thatcher wheat as possible for distribution next spring to farmers in the drought area. Hon. George Spence, acting minister of agriculture, recently stated that the government hoped to obtain between one-half and one million bushels of this variety of wheat through the Canadian wheat board. Additional supplies of other early maturing and rust resisting varieties of wheat must also be purchased although the total seed requirements for next spring are not yet known.

Keep The Best

Shopkeepers In Scotland Reluctant To Part With Wares

In replying to the American complaint that London shopkeepers leave customers to sell the goods to themselves, the columnist of the Morning Post declares that Scots shopkeepers are even more reluctant to part with their wares. For example:

"Some months ago a friend of mine was going to Carnoustie. He had left his watch at Perth to be mended, and sallied forth to buy a cheap substitute. He found a wee shop, kept by a quaint little Scot, and the following dialogue ensued: 'I want a cheap watch.'

"How cheap?"

"The cheapest you have."

"There's an I can gie ye for five shillins. My cousin's had the like of it for two years, an' it still keeps guid time."

"But it's too large for my pocket."

"Weel, there's a smaller ane, but it's dear—7s. 6d."

"I don't like the pattern on the back."

"Here's a bonnie wee watch, but it's terribly expensive—9s. 6d."

"Til take it."

"As the vendor was handing out the change, he said: 'Of course I've a far better watch than that, but it costs too much—18s., and nobody'll buy it, so I just keep it for swank.'"

Curious Race Incident

Winner Refused To Appear Wrong Decision Of Judge

Accidents happen even on the best-regulated racecourses, and one of the most curious incidents in the history of the Turf occurred at Goodwood.

The judge was so intent upon watching the struggle between two leading horses, running neck and neck, that he failed to notice another slipping ahead of them on the other side of the track.

The third horse past the winning-post well in front of the other two but the judge sent up the number of the second horse as winner, leaving the Duke of Richmond's Dandizette unplaced in a race it had won by three lengths.

The Duke refused to appeal, telling the repentant judge, "I have always heard that justice is blind; now I know it." What Dandizette's backers thought is unrecorded.—News of the World.

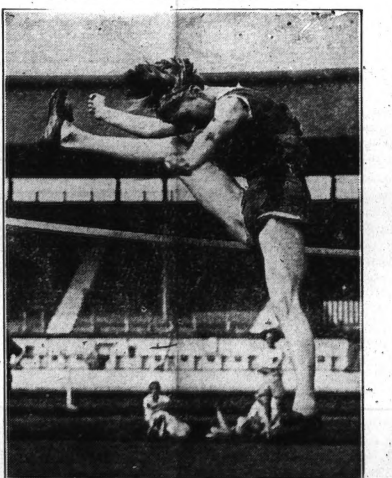

Promises To Return

"Next year we will come to America every two weeks with new helium-inflated Zeppelins," Captain Max Pruss, commander of the airship Hindenburg, said as he planned to leave the New York Medical Center to return to his home in Germany. Want Shorter Name

Citizens of William Williams Corner, a little community a mile south of Brazil, India, are tired of saying and writing the name of the place where they live. It's too long. It takes too much breath and too much ink, they complain. So they have prepared petitions asking that the community's name be changed to "Billville."

GIRL SETS NEW RECORD DESPITE INJURY

A seventeen-year-old girl, Miss Dorothy Odam, set a new British high-jump record for women at the A.A.A. championships in London when she cleared 5 feet 4 and 1/2 inches. Two days before the event she injured one of her ankles and it was twice its normal size when she broke her own record of 5 feet 4 inches.

ALICE STEVENS' RECIPES

FRUITS WITH PECTIN REQUIRED FOR JELLY

Are your jelly glasses all filled yet? If not, this is the time to get busy. Jelly and toast are used not only at breakfast time, but are very popular for teas and lunches. Then there must be some jelly for jelly rolls and layer-cakes this winter.

And pectin are the two essentials in making jelly. If a fruit lacks either of these, it is impossible to make jelly. Pectin is lacking, some commercial pectin or fruit that is rich in pectin can be added. If acid is lacking an acid fruit should be added. Apples are rich in both acid and pectin and for this reason they form the basis of many of our jellies. Our grandmothers knew this and they often combined apples with other fruits in making jelly.

A small cotton bag is used for draining off the juice. An empty 20-pound sugar sack makes a convenient bag. Do not squeeze the jelly-bag while draining, as this causes cloudy jelly. Allow the bag to drain overnight and if the fruit is rich in pectin, a second extraction can be made. Most of the pectin is found in the peelings and cores of the fruit. Do not peel the fruit, but cut into pieces, so that the cores are exposed and the pectin can be extracted easily. Excellent jelly can be made from the peelings and cores of apples which have been left when a big dish of apples has been prepared for cooking. This is an excellent way of re-planting the jelly supply in the winter.

The length of boiling is very important but rather hard to determine. If overcooked, the jelly is tough and leathery, but if undercooked the jelly does not set. When the boiling is nearly completed, a little can be tried on a cold saucer. The test that is most satisfactory is called the "two-drop" test. Lift some of the liquid on a spoon and watch as it runs back into the pan. At first it seems quite watery, but as the boiling is completed, two drops form side by side on the edge of the spoon. The jars do not need to be sealed airtight for jelly. The large amount of sugar present acts as a preservative. The jelly should be covered with paraffin and then a paper fastener over the top, to keep out the dust.

APPLE JELLY

Wash and stem the apples into small pieces. Cover with cold water and boil until the apples are soft. Put in a jelly-bag and drain overnight. Put the juice on the stove and boil from eight to twelve minutes. Measure the juice and add an equal amount of sugar which has been preserved. The jelly should be covered with paraffin and then a paper fastener over the top, to keep out the dust.

APPLE SYRUP FOR HOT CAKES

Wash and stem McIntosh apples. Put on to boil slowly, using as little water as possible. When thoroughly cooked, let drain through jelly bag. Return the juice to the kettle and boil quickly until condensed to a thin syrup consistency or until a light skim of jelly forms on top. Skim this off and add very gradually sufficient sugar to suit taste. Do not let the syrup boil after adding this sugar. This old-fashioned syrup is coming jelly. Dissolve the sugar by stirring. Put in hot sterilized jars as for preserved fruit.

The Weekly Newspaper

One Of The Most Potent And Uplifting Factors In Our Existence

Turning from the city newspapers to the small town press exchanges that come to the editor's desk is like stepping from the stums, full of vice into an old-fashioned garden sweet with lavender and thyme, and the scent of perennial flowers. The pages of the big dailies are so full of murder, thievery, immorality and selfishness that the better news is obscured by glaring shatterings of the Decalogue. One puts the papers aside with a feeling of depression and heartache that the world is full of terrible and unhappy things.

Then picking up the papers that record the happenings of the little towns around us, one feels renewed faith in life. Here are set forth only that which uplifts a community—the activities of the business men, the church items, the happy social gatherings of the people, farmers' items and all the thousand and one daily occurrences that make up the simple annals of the great common people, who are really the foundation of this broad country of ours.

Scandals are rarely published in the country newspapers, but it is so happens that decency demands it, the uglier details are omitted, or given a kindly touch that is widely different from the unfeeling publicity of the city press. The offenders may be our neighbors or people we have rubbed elbows with all our lives. They are real human beings to their own people, while to the great city dailies they are merely grains of a sort that are ground out hourly in their news mills.

Sometimes people speak lightly of the country newspaper, but it is one of the most potent and uplifting factors in our natural existence.—Boston Monitor.

The Official Title

Burma Is Now Overseas Territory Of The Crown

Citizens of Burma have been worrying themselves as to what the exact designation of their country should be since it was separated from India, observes the Indian Press Union.

No one dared to call it a colony because that would sever too little of democracy. The word "Kingdom" was rejected because it might be misleading, while the designation "Province" is not now permissible. The problem has been solved by the officials in London, who now designate Burma as "Overseas Territory of the Crown." As this is a long title, it is understood that the letters O.T.C. will be used when alluding to Burma.—Windsor Star.

Canada's Coal Production

The production of coal in Canada during June amounted to 1,063,865 tons as compared with 1,087,700 tons in the same month of last year. In Saskatchewan, the production amounted to 22,483 tons, a decrease of almost 4,000 tons from the output in June, 1936.

British Merchant Marine

Fewer British Merchant Vessels Afloat Than In 1914

Establishment of a ministry of marine is advocated by Paymaster-Lieutenant-Commander E. C. Talbot-Bell in a foreword to his reference book "Merchant Ships, 1937."

Declaring there were 1,000 fewer British merchant vessels afloat today than in 1914 and the average size of ships was greater, he said, "it is a foreword to his reference book 'Merchant Ships, 1937.'"

Declaring there were 1,000 fewer British merchant vessels afloat today than in 1914 and the average size of ships was greater, he said, "it is a foreword to his reference book 'Merchant Ships, 1937.'"

Unless a ministry of marine is instituted without delay, Britain will be in a bad way, he concluded. "If it were necessary to control British shipping in time of war, it is equally necessary to control it in times of peace or economic war, and there need be no fear of unjust interference with the legitimate trading aspirations of individual companies."

Iron And Steel Products

During 1936 there were 16 plants engaged in the manufacture of iron and steel and their products in Saskatchewan. These had capital employed to the extent of $1,463,785 and paid $237,003 in salaries and wages to 258 employees.

WARNING SENT BY BRITAIN TO GENERAL FRANCO

London.—Great Britain served notice on insurgent General Franco for his patience over attacks on Mediterranean shipping has reached the breaking point.

Great Britain, informed sources predicted, will endorse a warning by Turkey that Turkish warships will sink submarines that enter Turkish waters in further attacks on Spanish and other shipping off the Dardanelles.

Russia was expected to adopt the same stand. Mosevitch Kagan, her neutrality representative, declared the sinkings were "banditry and piracy on the part of Franco and his Italians."

A British note to Franco, transmitted through American Ambassador Henry C. Clifton at Hendaya, France, threatened reprisals. The bluntly worded protest warned:

"If there is any repetition of these attacks the British government must reserve to themselves the right to take such action as the occasion demands."

The danger to Britain's maritime interest in the Mediterranean, her life-line to India and the far east, was brought to focus again by the 15th recent attack on a British merchantman.

The master of the Greek tanker Romford, sailing under the British flag, reported to harbor authorities at Piraeus, Greece, his ship was attacked about 20 miles off Barcelona. He radioed an unidentified aeroplane dropped five bombs within 30 yards of the Romford but did no damage.

Earlier in the week the British freighter Noemi Julia was attacked.

Field Crops Ruined

First Fall Loss Suffered At White Court, Alberta

White Court, Alta.—First fall losses in White Court district within memory of settlers followed a heavy storm that battered gardens in the country and ruined the crops in the city. Little grain had been cut. Mink Creek area, best in the district, where bumper crops were in prospect, is a complete loss.

Many farmers in a 10-mile strip of country are completely ruined. Preceded by high winds, the storm lasted about 15 minutes, and hail fell like marbles or larger. Windows were broken and roofs punctured. Berry pickers, caught in the open, are showing bruises and lacerations in the fields developed big bumps where the hail hit them.

(White Court is 120 miles northwest of Edmonton.)

Manitoba's Wheat Crop

Expected To Be The Largest In Thirteen Years

Winnipeg.—Manitoba is expected to yield 53,000,000 bushels of wheat according to returns released by provincial department of agriculture.

From estimates made of threshing yields recorded the department estimated the province would probably reap in addition to the 53,000,000 bushels of wheat, 44,000,000 bushels of oats and 37,000,000 bushels of barley.

Should wheat production reach the estimated 53,000,000 bushels it would be the largest crop in the province in more than 13 years and top the 1928 production by nearly 500,000 bushels. The 10-year average for wheat produced in Manitoba is 54,832,400 bushels.

Horse Disease In Ontario

Toronto.—Steps have been taken by Ontario department of agriculture to curb the spread of the disease killing off horses in Manitoba, and which has now spread into northern Ontario, Agriculture Minister Duncan Marshall said. Only a few cases of sleeping sickness among horses have been reported in northern Ontario.

Surprise For Tourist

Quebec.—Tourist Gilbert Goff of Owassaw, Mich., climbed the historic Towers on the upper town Cliffside, and saw a sight that left him speechless. Goff got to one of the Towers' barred windows just in time to see his motor car go tumbling down the 150-foot cliff into a lower town street. The brakes had slipped.

Large Number Of Cases

Winnipeg.—First semi-official reports of the number of horses disabled by sleeping sickness have been released by the Manitoba department of agriculture. Available records and messages from southern Manitoba indicate there are between 1,000 and 2,000 cases.

Report Is Denied

No Revolt In Salvation Army States Chief Of Staff

London.—Writing in the "War Cry," official organ of the Salvation Army, John MacMillan, chief of staff, denied published reports that ranking officers of the army threatened to depose their leader, General Evangeline C. Booth, if she declined to retire next year.

Commissioner MacMillan, who came from Canada to assume that post earlier this year, declared that during recent weeks "several newspapers have published statements which suggest dissatisfaction exists among the officers of the Salvation Army."

"The latest of these, which appears in a London morning newspaper, speaks of a 'revolt' among some of the leading officers and makes other equally false statements," he added. "Absolutely no evidence exists of any such state of affairs in the army in any part of the world."

The Daily Herald said leading officers were uneasy over the "apparent reluctance" of General Booth to retire when she reached the age of 73 on Christmas day, 1938. It added officers would summon the high council of the army into session to oust her, as it did her brother, the late General Bramwell Booth, if she did not step out voluntarily.

General Bramwell Booth was ousted in 1929 on the grounds that his physical condition did not permit him to continue in his high office. The regulation fixing 73 as the retirement age "for the time being" was established by General Edward J. Higgins, General Evangeline Booth's predecessor.

Ontario Conservative Leader Will Run In Simcoe Centre

Toronto.—Hon. Earl Rowe, M.P. leader of the Ontario Conservative party, announced he will leave the "safe seat" of Dufferin-Simcoe in which he has been elected to federal house for 14 years.

Mr. Rowe will contest Simcoe Centre against Hon. L. J. Simpson, minister of education, in the Oct. 6 election. "I have accepted Mr. Simpson's challenge to test public opinion in my own riding," said Mr. Rowe. "I am confident the electors will endorse my stand."

No News From Outside

Foreign Residents Of Peiping Shut Off From World

Peiping.—Foreign residents of Peiping feared all contact with the outside world was about to be shut off except through Japanese sources and under Japanese surveillance.

A squad of 20 Japanese plainclothesmen invaded the central post office preparatory, it was believed, to establish a censorship of the mails. The Peiping Chronicle, a British-owned daily newspaper favorable to the Nanking government, was closed by police who raided and occupied its offices.

Suspension of The Chronicle left the former capital's foreign community with no sources of outside news except the pro-Japanese Peiping Daily News and a small French newspaper, Journal de Pekin.

The Japanese also have taken over the radio broadcasting station of the Chinese ministry of communications.

BRITAIN TRIES TO REMOVE FIGHTING FROM SHANGHAI

London.—Great Britain will continue efforts to persuade China and Japan to remove armed forces from Shanghai, a communique announced, following a conference between Prime Minister Chamberlain and leading members of his cabinet.

The communique stated the government, after considering an increasing number of attacks on Mediterranean shipping, would maintain continuously, for the present at least, 11 warships—two heavy ships and a flotilla of destroyers—in the western Mediterranean basin for the protection of British shipping.

The meeting "endorsed decisions already taken" in regard to the Far Eastern situation "and especially reaffirmed that all practicable measures would be taken to protect British lives and property in Shanghai," the communique said, adding:

"There is no truth in the report the British government are contemplating a policy of evacuation from the British government propose to persist in efforts to secure the exclusion of Shanghai from the area of hostilities."

Bad Dangerous Ride

Baby Carried Eight Miles On Running Board Of Car

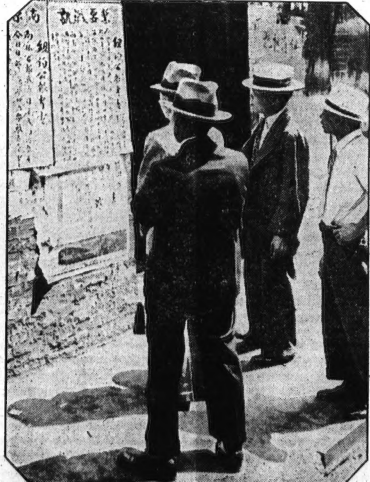

Cacouna, Que.—Carried away on the running board of her father's motor car, 20-month-old Odette Letourneau clung to her perch while her father drove eight miles over bumpy roads and her mother pursued them in a neighbor's car.

Odette climbed onto the running board unnoticed by her father, who started away with the child. The car had gone some distance before Mrs. Letourneau spotted the girl.

Past the farms outside this town, 124 miles below Quebec, Letourneau sped with the human cargo hanging on. Amazed farmers didn't recover speech in time for the father to hear their cries. After eight miles, the car in which Mrs. Letourneau was driving caught up.

The baby was unhurt.

Berlin.—The Nazi press expressed pleasure at reported Japanese successes in North China, declaring Tokyo's military strength confronted the world with a new political situation.

Newspapers displayed under headlines Japanese dispatches reporting "anguishing Chinese losses." Praise was devoted to the "splendid caliber" of Japan's motorized army.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels' Der Angriff charged the Soviet Union was "intervening in China, as it has done in Spain," by furnishing Chinese with men and equipment.

Rate May Be High

Likely 25 Cents A Letter For U.S. Airmail To Europe

Washington.—Airmail to Europe, perhaps to be inaugurated this fall, probably will cost 25 cents a letter, United States postal officials said.

"We had hoped to make it 20 cents," said Harlow Branch, second assistant postmaster general. "Now it looks more like 25c."

British Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airlines already are completing test flights over transatlantic routes they hope to inaugurate by November.

Serious Bush Fire

Has Caused Heavy Damage North Of Prince Albert

Prince Albert.—Damage of $10,000 was reported from Meath Park, 30 miles northeast of here, where thousands of bushels of grain, several buildings, 25 telegraph poles and 900 ties on the Canadian Pacific Railway roadbed were destroyed by a bush fire, in addition to tons of feed, hay and timber.

Further inland over the north-eastern section of the province, forestry officials reported 11 new outbreaks in the Sled Lake area, west of Smoothstone Lake, where men and equipment were rushed to combat the flames.

Sixty men were rushed out of Prince Albert to a serious outbreak reported from the east end of Fort a la Corne reserve, located a few miles east of here.

Two planes were kept busy virtually all night fighting men out of Big River to carry fires, and residents of the Torch River settlement, north of Nipawin, were called upon to battle flames which threatened homes, possessions and valuable timber tracts.

At Meath Park the bush fires of unknown origin are being investigated by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, starting south of the townsite and fanned by a strong southwest wind. The fire travelled north to the Canadian Pacific Railway track, destroying everything in its path, but was reported under control.

Trouble On Battleship

Publication Of Findings Of Naval Board Of Inquiry

London.—Existence of trouble aboard the battleship Warspite on June 30 was revealed for the first time with publication of the findings of a naval court of inquiry.

The court recommended removal of 9 or 10 ratings from the Warspite to other warships, the discharge of three ratings from the navy and that three officers of the Warspite be relieved of their appointments.

No details of the trouble were made public except that it was due to a misunderstanding concerning weekend leave while the warship was at Portsmouth. It was understood the situation arising from a breach of discipline was not handled in an entirely satisfactory manner.

THE SURRENDER OF SANTANDER TO FRANCO'S FORCES

With The Inaugural Forces Outside Santander, Spain.—The provisional Basque capital of Santander has surrendered to General Franco's northern forces.

Insurgent commanders said that the entire government army, estimated at 15,000 men, would lay down their arms. Basque authorities of the strategic seaport announced that the city had yielded to its besiegers.

Franco's communique said huge stocks of oil were seized in Torrelavega. So complete was the government's collapse to Santander's west and southwest that Franco's headquarters in the field was scarcely able to keep up a tabulation of corps commanders' reports of occupied towns and villages. The curving front in 75 miles.

General Franco in a blunt communique threatened to continue his campaign against ships aiding the Valencia government.

"Nations anxious about the prestige of their flags must be most interested to see that the seas are cleared of this band of undesirables," the communique said.

"All projects for neutrality are useless if these nations passively leave the door open for traffic in arms and munitions by allowing their flags to be used by persons lacking all scruples."

"Nationalist Spain at any rate cannot passively see the passing before the bows of its warships sea bandits who carry tanks, guns, arms and munitions to spread death in the ranks of its army and worse among women and children at its rear."

Executions In Russia

Purge Of Anti-Soviet Workers In Leningrad Province

Moscow.—A purge of "anti-Soviet workers" spread in Leningrad province, with seven collective farm officials going on trial for sabotage. All confessed to attempts to discredit Soviet collective farming in order to restore capitalism.

Nine others were executed as "terrorists" after trial, the newspaper Leningradskaya Pravda reported.

MORE RAIN IS PREDICTED NEXT YEAR FOR WEST

Washington.—If cyclic changes in weather which have prevailed in the past continue, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, said there should be wetter weather next year in the Canadian west.

The Smithsonian secretary, who has specialized in observations and delicate measurements of solar radiation and its effects on earthly weather for many years, declared that two approaches to the problem led him to the same conclusion regarding weather in that area.

"A study of the levels of water in the Great Lakes shows a cyclic change varying over a period of 46 years," he said. "My impression is that the lakes will begin to recover from a low level in 1939, which would mean that precipitation in the area draining into them should increase in 1938."

On the other hand, he added, a study of weather records from a large number of stations for the past 70 to 80 years, which shows a 25-year and 46-year variation in precipitation, and this study also leads me to the same impression that a recovery from dry conditions in the northwest Canadian area should begin in 1938."

Dr. Abbot added that his predictions "cannot yet be regarded as the basis for establishing specific programs, but they do indicate in general the character of weather conditions which should prevail."

Wealthy U.S. Banker Dead

Andrew Mellon Was Secretary Of Treasury Under Three Presidents

Southampton, N.Y.—Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the United States treasury under three presidents; former ambassador to Great Britain and one of the world's wealthiest men, died peacefully in the home of a daughter, Mrs. David Bruce. Death was due to uremia and bronchial pneumonia.

He was in his 84th year. His death took from the American scene one of the last of its statesmen-diplomats. Mellon, spare, quiet, white-haired and reserved, went to the home of Mrs. Bruce in July, his health weakened by the excessive June heat of Washington where he had remained to arrange for his national gallery of art.

Oil and aluminum were at the base of his vast fortune—one of the world's greatest. His benefactions ran into millions and the operations of his enterprises reached around the earth.

He became secretary of treasury first in the administration of Warren G. Harding, and was later over by President Coolidge and Hoover.

His actual wealth probably will remain a mystery but close friends said they believed holdings of the banker and his two children would amount to approximately $500,000,000.

THE CROWN CAN DO NO WRONG

This famous axiom is sometimes rather vexatious and even exasperating. In Canada today the Dominion Government owns more than fifteen hundred cars and trucks which are not insured, and if perchance they do any damage to any citizen they are to all intents and purposes immune against claims for damages. The government accepts liability whenever death or injury results from the negligence of an officer or servant of the Crown while acting within the scope of his employment on a public work. But the question then arises, "What is a public work?" A transport driver for the Crown collided with a car driven by a subject, but there was no recovery of damages since the transport was not a public work. A fisherman got damages for injury to his nets done by negligent dredging by the government, but this was because the dredging was a "public work." An article falling from the Ottawa post-office upon a citizen resulted in collection of damages; but a car driven by an officer of the R.C.M.P. was not a public work and damage done by it was without redress. The Canadian Bar Association has a committee on law reform and they are pressing for such a change in the law as will substantially wipe out the Crown's prerogatives in the field specified. It seems a strange and most undesirable thing that the government itself should not be subject to the laws which uphold it and which are not obligatory upon all subjects of the country. The matter was brought before Mr. Lapointe last session, but he, perhaps naturally, did not care to consider it. And yet it surely ought to be considered, and that speedily.—New Outlook.

While Aberhart talks, Saskatchewan is acting.

Hon. Solon Low, an Alberta school teacher, is anxiously awaiting the offspring from 100 steers. Next?

Imagine Aberhart asking Douglas whether or not it would be advisable to license school children.

Latest report from Paris says the styles for 1938 will include larger legs and smaller waists.

Just let Aberhart try to force the press of Alberta to support him! Those connected with the press are not in the class of the ordinary sap!

What is supposed to be a program for Labor Day at Blairmore, turned out in other-than-printed form, is a real scream of a joke. See it!

Aberhart says that he is a Canadian and intends to remain so. Fine; but why does he not act like a Canadian?—Vegreville Observer.

Aberhart should take an inventory among the faithful—Social Crediters—to ascertain what percentage of them, if any, have so far retained their savings in Alberta.

A half-grown black fox that had probably escaped from the confines of the fox ranch nearby, appeared on the highway east of Lundbreck Falls on Tuesday evening. Asked his name, he replied "Maynard."

A persistent rumor has it that Mr. Aberhart proposes next to take an inventory of the school children of the province with a view to licensing them. A child without a license would not be permitted to go to school.

Great things are being exposed through the probe into provincial highways construction. Just shows how sincere Social Crediters are when they advocate treating all equally. Evidence of favorites is being shown in many cases.

The newly formed Firebosses Association of Alberta will stage a series of Sunday meetings, at which talks on various angles of mining will be given, followed by open discussions. The first of such meetings was held at Drumheller on Sunday last.—Drumheller Mail.

There will be no necessity for Aberhart establishing immigration officers along Alberta's boundaries, for there are no outsiders wanting to come in today. Of course, the idea would provide soft jobs for some of his heelsers who are still looking for fulfillment of a promise.

Provincial governments collected $60,165,279 in gasoline taxes and registration fees in 1936, of which $25,632,843 represented revenues from motor vehicle licenses, operators' permits, and $34,532,436 was from the gasoline tax. This represents an increase of $5,500,000 over the preceding year.

The marriage of Hon. Michael Dwyer, Nova Scotia minister of mines and one of the best known cabinet ministers in the provincial legislatures of Canada, to Miss Beatrice Sutherland Campbell, of New Glasgow, took place at Pomquet, N.S., on Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Dwyer will spend their honeymoon in Vancouver.

About four hundred representatives of the Sun Life Assurance Company gathered in convention at Jasper Park Lodge on Wednesday of last week. The convention lasted a whole week. Six trains from east and west brought in the delegates, many of whom were accompanied by their wives. An additional staff was necessary to care for the gathering.

A Southern Alberta old-timer and well known C.P.R. trainman, A. Du-four, passed away Tuesday at Nelson, B.C., after an illness of several months. Conductor on the Nelson-Crows' Nest route since 1904, Mr. Du-four made his home in Macleod for many years, later moving to Nelson. He was in active service at the time of his death, and leaves a widow and two daughters in Nelson. Mrs. Du-four is a sister of Wilfred and Fred Goddard, of Blairmore.

FROM THE PRESS OF 1938

The following item appeared in The Midnapore Gazette on April 1st, 1938: Joshua Green appeared before Magistrate Silas Brown, charged, with lending money without a license. Josh, who was not represented by counsel, pleaded that he was not a banker under the meaning of the Act of 1937, and argued forcefully that the very fact of his lending money ought to be sufficient proof. Judgment reserved.

In its issue of April 8th, the Gazette reports that His Worship, Silas Brown, gave judgment against Joshua Green in the case reported last week. In doing so, he stated that he had submitted the evidence to the Attorney-General's Department and had received a letter from the Provincial Treasurer setting forth that although the point is not covered by the Act of 1937, yet the government feels it is in duty bound to protect its licensees against unlicensed competition.

A despatch from Edmonton says there is intense feeling against the Provincial Treasurer for giving an opinion favorable to bankers. The late Attorney-General was dismissed for expressing an opinion on the legality of a statute. The Premier in an interview, said the two cases were entirely different. He pointed out that the Treasurer is not a lawyer and hence his opinion is not so embarrassing to the government.

Another note in the Gazette records that the bank of Midnapore did not take out a license and that the people of that enterprising burg have had to depend entirely on bootleggers for their loans.

And in the advertising columns of the Gazette appeared this ad:

MORE PARTICULARS FORTUNE HARBOUR SEA MONSTER

Further particulars regarding the strange fish captured at Fortune Harbour are contained in a message to the Evening Telegram from Capt. E. B. Noble of the motor vessel Golda, which heads as follows:

"Have monster tied up to motor vessel Golda. The exact length is thirty-four feet with flippers 4 ft. long 2 ft. wide. The exact width of tail is 9 ft. 8 in. and the mouth is 3 ft. wide, 9 ft. snout. It is not like a Newfoundland whale and it is believed to be carrying young, as it is nearly as large around as it is long. There is 9 1/2 inches of fat on the fish. If no sale of fish is made it will be manufactured by L. J. Noble and son, Nipper's Mr. This monster is certainly worth seeing."

EARL B. NOBLE.
The fish is said to be an Arctic whale, called a bow whale, often found in the waters near Greenland.

ON BEING READY

The man who is there with the wallop and punch,
The one who is trained to the nineteenth,
May well be around when the trouble begins,
But you seldom will find he is in it;
For they let him alone when they know he is there
For any set part in the ramble,
To pick out the one who is shrinking and soft
And not quite attuned to the scramble.

The one who is fixed for whatever they start.
Is rarely expected to prove it;
They pass him along for the next shot in sight
Where they take a full-wind-up and groove it;
For who wants to pick on a bulldog or such
Where a quivering poodle is handy
When he knows he can win with a kick or a brick
With no further trouble to bandy?
—Grantland Rice.

Aberhart professes to believe in co-operation of the forced variety.

It is interesting to note that not one banker fell for Aberhart's licensing legislation.

Of all the Bills introduced at Edmonton, none seems more unpopular than Bill Aberhart.

If Douglas should say "To hell with Alberta," Aberhart would advise that we go there. Douglas now has complete control of both places.

Why not revise Mr. Aberhart to fit the British North America Act? 'Twould probably save him a lot of study.

Next to the roads, the greatest cost in Alberta today will likely be travelling expense bills of government members.

One Saskatchewan farmer in the drought area reported that he had sent his entire crop to town by his brother in a single sack, requesting that the sack be returned.

When Aberhart is through with the banks, the press and his governmental failures, he should next try running a newspaper. There never was and never will be a dictator who can make a real success of anything.

More like the Hitlerites every day! Those who are going to attend the grand Social Credit rally in Calgary, Saturday, are asked to be there early in order to take part in a grand march past the speaker's stand. Premier Aberhart from that vantage point, will survey his troops and welcome the faithful. The anxious question is raised as to whether the grand marchers have been required to how the knee, extend the right hand heavenward, palm up, or make any seemly obeisance or salute.—Ex.

An exchange remarks: Mr. Aberhart's telegram to Premier Mackenzie King was not a statesmanlike document. It savored of hysteria, of the frantic cries of a drowning man. References to "financial tyranny" and "plutocratic opposition" usually emanates from the soap boxes, instead of legislatures. Mr. Mackenzie King's telegram was a statesmanlike document. It explained the situation tersely and truthfully. He offered sound advice to Mr. Aberhart and the people of the province when he indicated in effect that the solution of the problems of Alberta would not be found in freak legislation, but in general measures aimed at the improvement of economic conditions as a whole.

Wells Morton, of Blairmore, met with a serious accident at the Waymarn well on Tuesday. Falling from a derrick, on which he had been working, he sustained two fractures of an arm and a broken leg near the hip. He was removed to the Pincher Creek hospital for treatment.

A tea and surprise party was held last Friday afternoon and evening in honor of Mrs. M. A. Stewart, of Blairmore, on her eightieth birthday. Those present were all neighbors of the district in which she lives. During the afternoon pictures were taken of the three oldest ladies present, namely, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. W. Howe and Mrs. D. R. McKay. Mrs. Stewart was the recipient of many beautiful flowers and very useful gifts.

Lieut. Mattison has arrived in Coleman from High River to take charge of the district Salvation Army work. Lieut. Hewitt, of Toronto, will be his assistant. They succeed Lieutenants Fitch and Frayn. Lieut. Mattison was for several years in the advertising department of the Vancouver Province, and was a member of the No. 3 Corp (Grandview) band. Later he trained in the S. A. College, Toronto. The Pass welcomes the new officers.

TAX PROVED HINDRANCE

Those states which would add restrictive tax and highway barrier laws to their legislative enactments, should "Stop, Look and Listen." They might profit from the experience of New Mexico, which enacted a caravan law under which the state collected a fee for use of its roads from common carriers and caravanners. The law was upheld by the United States Supreme Court and was held up as a model for this type of legislation.

Officials of this southwestern State woke one gloomy morning a few weeks ago and found out that although their receipts from enforcement of their caravan law amounted to $223,000 for the year July 1, 1936, to June 30, 1937, their tourist business had gone to pot. In addition it cost $85,000 to operate their port of entry system of their new law.

Business men all over the State soon saw the danger, and conclusively demonstrated that the State stood to lose $20,200,000, which is one third of its tourist revenue, in order to collect $250,000 in road tax. This was considered enough argument to discontinue it.

Why shouldn't Douglas approve of Alberta's deft of Ottawa's stand. He has nothing to lose, everything to gain, and doesn't have to care a hoot as to what happens Alberta or Alberta's people.

DRUMHELLER'S NEON ADVERTISING BOARD HAS VANISHED

The large display board, complete with electric clock, mammoth thermometer, and thirty or more spaces taken up by advertising of local business firms was torn down from the Reno Bar building this week, to make room for another advertisement board, which may prove more profitable for the lessee.

About two years ago this large board of multiple advertising was erected after a number of firms had signed on the dotted line for space to the tune of about forty dollars apiece. Stipulations in the contract called for the large electrically controlled clock to function twenty-four hours per day until the two-year term ended; the sign was to be well lighted at night, and advertisers were to be given the privilege of having new copy painted in their rented spaces every six months, if they so wished.

When the company sponsoring the advertising board did not come across with the second month's light account, the supply of electricity was cut off; the clock stopped, and the sign went without lights—the only thing that worked was the thermometer, and it is doubtful if that could be relied on. However, the contract has apparently ended now between the company and the advertisers, but the latter did not get what they contracted for. Some who had not paid the full amount of their contract, refused to pay further installments when the terms of the agreement were not being fulfilled. In any event, those who had sponsored the scheme, left Drumheller with their pockets well-lined with local businessmen's cash.

If each of the businessmen who subscribed to the scheme had spent the same amount of money in local newspaper advertising, where copy could have been changed every week, and the message placed into the hands of thousands of readers, their returns would undoubtedly have been noticeable—and the money they spent would have been distributed in the city. If businessmen would only realize that all these outside advertising schemers who come to the city with propositions are only here to line their pockets, and have no real interest in the welfare of the city, and certainly no investment here, they would probably think twice before signing on the dotted line—Drumheller Mail.

Blairmore has one of these boards, erected at great cost to a number of merchants and the town. It, too, has not operated, and the clock has been just as dead. It's the second biggest eyesore in town. It's not necessary to name the other.

A skunk in Alberta is looked upon as an expert.

Pretty soon Able will not be able to go to that little house in the bush without permission of Duggie.

Crocodiles will institute damage action against Mr. Aberhart, claiming that he has been using their tears.

The calibre of material that would be appointed locally, as bank inspectors (or directors) would be interesting to study.

At a wedding ceremony in Boston a few days ago, the groom sang "I Love Thee." Five hours later he was seeking a divorce.

A local guy, who was in Calgary at the time of the great Social Credit rally, referred to the affair as "saluting the dinosaur."

Must have been a wonderful sight at Calgary recently to see a few hundred people bowing the knee and raising the hand in worship of their little great I Am.

Had Mr. Aberhart had the privilege of counting the fans in the Yankee Stadium on Monday night, he would have had it 160,000, judging by his estimate of the gathering at St. George's Island.

C. B. Barrell, popular manager of the Royal hotel, Calgary, who is on holiday with Mrs. Barrell, spent the early part of the week with relatives and friends in Blairmore. They returned to Calgary by Wednesday's train.

A. J. King, formerly chief inspector of the sales tax branch, and J. F. Percival, deputy provincial treasurer, succeeded A. J. Mason, the present chairman of the liquor commission of Alberta, the change taking place on Monday of this week.

The continued and increasing demands upon space by both national and local advertisers, and the necessity during recent weeks of curtailing news services owing to a crowded paper have made it necessary for the Grande Prairie Herald to increase its size. Grande Prairie must be a white man's territory.

The Windsor Star remarks: "Mr. Aberhart and his ministers seem to be proceeding on the theory that Alberta is a country by itself. Perhaps the next thing we hear is they will be suggesting establishment of an Alberta tariff schedule, with customs officers—and maybe immigration men, as well—on the provincial boundary lines."

On a recent visit to Windsor, Ontario, Mr. J. R. Smith, sales manager of the West Canadian Collieries, Blairmore, received a Studebaker Veteran Owners League emblem from Mr. D. C. Gaskin, Studebaker sales manager. Mr. Smith has been driving Studebaker automobiles since 1914, and was awarded the emblem on the occasion of taking delivery of his new 1937 Dictator cruising sedan.

George F. Fisher, of Calgary, who was on his way home from a visit with A. B. King, Fernie bank manager, camping near Cranbrook, was held up and robbed of $26 and a watch. Later, a man named Mike Bossio, a resident of Fernie, was arrested. The watch and about seventeen dollars of the cash were found on him. He was charged with robbery with violence.

THREE KILLED AT LEVEL CROSSINGS

Dreadful toll of level crossing accidents in Alberta is again causing alarm among those interested in promoting safe driving in this province.

Within two days two accidents at these crossings took the lives of three Alberta people. Since the first of the year other accidents of this kind, some fatal, have occurred.

Repeated warnings do not seem to be sufficient to reduce these accidents causing death, serious physical injury or damage to property. Education of the public to these hazards and the need of using every possible care at railway crossings apparently is not effective.

Municipal authorities, it is suggested, might well give greater co-operation in a movement to eliminate more of these level crossings.

Federal money is available in what is known as the grade crossing fund, which is administered by the board of railway commissioners, for the elimination of crossings. Steps should be taken to see that more of that money is spent in this province.

"These accidents just recently should stir public action," says an official of the Alberta Motor Association. "Something must be done. We must have greater safety, and that can be ensured to a greater degree by grade elimination and road diversion policies."

OPEN LETTER TO A ROAD-HOG

Some day, my ill-mannered friend, you are going to go too far. Some day when you swerve around a street corner, you are going to clip the buttons off the wrong pedestrian's vest, and he is going to catch up with you, haul you off your comfy upholstery and deal you a smacking-down you deserve. You're a veritable Titan of self-assurance, aren't you, when you're behind a high-powered engine? But how do you look on your feet? Are you the same dashing, imposing, self-assured personage for whom the rest of the world must make room? Would you dare shove another pedestrian aside; would you jostle a six-footer? You would not, for you're just a grubby little inferiority complex who's been sublimated by a shot of gasoline.

And what's the reason for this break-neck rush of yours, anyway? You're in an automobile. You'll arrive at your destination 10, 15 or 20 times quicker than the pedestrian you're crowding back on to the curb. The best he can do is five or six miles an hour. You are going 25 or 30, perhaps 40 miles an hour. Is your business ten times more urgent than his? My, my, what an important fellow you are! What vast designs, what momentous projects must occupy your waking hours to justify such impatience.

The automobile, 'it seems, is the devil's gift to the Little Man. Put him in control of a motor car and he's cock of the cross-walks. But if you suddenly yanked that ton or two of iron and steel out from under him, you'd find him a measly nonentity with the mental set-up of a public school bully. You may say I'm in a bad frame of mind. You're right! And I'll get over it when fellows like you begin to use a little care, caution, courtesy and common-sense when you're driving on the streets and highways of this province.

"A PEDESTRIAN."

Looking over the list of teachers placed at Calgary for the fall term, we find the names of the following former members of staffs of The Pass schools: King Edward, Miss W. B. Williams; Mount Royal, Miss L. M. Perkins; McDougall, Miss Blanche Douglas; Parkhill, Miss Vivian Keith; Sunnyside Bungalow, Miss Edna M. Fulton; Balmoral High, Miss M. T. Davis, B.A.; Langevin Junior High, J. W. Verge, B.A., principal; Central High, E. B. Asselstine, M.A.; Crescent Heights High, C. V. Asselstine, B.A.; Western Canada High, Ross G. Powell, B.A.; Alexandra, C. L. Williams, B.A.

Wouldn't Aberhart like to dictate to this whole Dominion—and possibly the world!

MacKenzie King heard Aberhart's cry, "Hands off Alberta"—so he sat on it, figuratively speaking.—Ex.

Alberta's banking legislation has been placed in the hands of the Supreme Court of Canada.

"The question has just been asked: 'How often has the member for the Macleod federal riding visited the Crows' Nest Pass since his election?'"

There is this to be said in favor of Mormonism: It doesn't throw the entire burden of supporting a husband upon one woman.

We were asked by a small lady what we would do with her on a fishing trip. The reply was: "Throw her back as undersized."

"Is it true, mother, that we spring frae monkeys?"

"I dinna ken, laddie. I wisna vera well acquainted wi' yer father's folk."

A list of the personnel who are looking for jobs with Aberhart's bank control locally would be most interesting. We dare not mention them now, but they are well known locally, and all ready to go to work. It's a scream!

In a baseball series played on the Blairmore diamond on Sunday last, Blairmore Canucks were declared winners of the Goddard cup, and Michel the Ringland cup. Lundbreck, Hilcrest, Blairmore and Michel teams competed.

The crowd at the rally at St. George's Island on Saturday was estimated by Social Crediters at 20,000—by others 4,000 and by the press at 2,000. Then they claim the press exaggerates! Just try to place 10,000 on that island!

George Shearer came down from Kimberley on Sunday, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Arthur Shearer, and sister, Mrs. Gale. George left again by motor on Monday for Los Angeles, accompanied by Mrs. Shearer and her sister.

A mass meeting will be held in the Victoria Pavilion, Calgary, on Wednesday next, Sept. 8, under auspices of the People's League of Alberta, to be addressed by Lon A. Cavanaugh and others on the subject "Alberta's Disaster," meaning, of course, Social Credit or Aberhart.

On August 22nd and 29th, 1937, St. Andrew's church at Williamstown, Ontario, celebrated its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary with special services, at which Principal H. A. Kent, of Queen's Theological Seminary, and Rt. Rev. Peter Bryce, moderator, took part, as well as Rev. James Cattanach, of Baltimore, Md., and the pastor, Rev. George W. Irvine.

It was a shrewd move to invite Mr. Aberhart to test the Act in the Supreme Court. If he declined—well, he was invited and if he had faith that his legislation would stand the test, why decline the test? That would be the ordinary public reaction. Social Credit leagues do not take that attitude however. They wired Mr. King that democracy has failed if the Supreme Court can override the will of the people. When did the people say it was their will? Was there one person in Alberta who, two years ago, suggested one provision of this Act?—H. C. in Pertinent Topics.

A very interesting visitor to Blairmore on Saturday evening last was Mr. Harold Barger, who up to some ten years ago took a very active part in baseball in the Crows' Nest Pass, playing against teams from this end of The Pass many a time. He, with Mrs. Barger, were returning home to Denver, Colorado, after a brief visit with friends in Fernie, and were motor-ing south through the new Logan Pass highway. At Blairmore, Harold called on Rod McLeod and other old friends. In Denver, Harold is a particular friend of Mervin Pruden former member of the Blairmore baseball and hockey clubs.

Ideal Farm Course

University of Saskatchewan Offers Special Tuition During Winter

A special course of particular interest to farmers and their sons, will be given this winter at the University of Saskatchewan. Objectives of the course are to develop successful farmers, understanding citizens and rural leaders. The course will start October 28 and will be completed on March 28 of next year. Tuition in crop production, feeding and management of livestock, farm motors, English, horticulture and beekeeping, dairying, poultry, general science, gymnastics and swimming and present-day problems are on the first year curriculum. In the second year cereal and forage crops, breeds and breeding of livestock, building construction, blacksmithing and carpentry, public speaking, farm management, veterinary hygiene, soil, general science and discussion of present-day problems will be studied.

Strange Fact About Trees

Roots - Of One Will Never Touch Another Underground

The roots of one tree will never touch those of another underground. This fact was established by Professor M. A. Raines, of Howard University, who for years has investigated the matter. Further, he finds that in trees and plants of the same species, the roots of the younger invariably bend slightly so as to allow the roots of an older plant to pass.

Most plants and trees are sensitive, and Professor Raines thinks that the roots give off some elusive compound—probably electric—which repels. He has trained roots to meet each other, but when nearly touching, they invariably turn aside.—Montreal Star.

Wire handles with which a person can pick up and carry several bottles of milk without touching them have been invented for sanitary purposes.

Patent Worth Noting

Does Away With Annoying Skid Of Paper Napkins

United States Patent No. 2,009,831 is worth noting. It is destined to do away with the old-fashioned skidding paper napkins which one spreads on one's lap at the start of a meal and finds two minutes later on the floor.

The new non-skid type of napkin adheres to the abdomen, however precipitous. You simply press one corner against your clothing, and it's anchored. Does not harm the most delicate fabrics.

Life, you see, gradually approaches a sort of homely perfection, all the little inconveniences ironed out, only the large grotesqueries remaining unchanged from year to year—war, poverty, melancholia, and the lethal fumes from internal combustion.—New Yorker.

Interfere With Television

Television may compel all motorists and commercial vehicle owners to fit radio suppressors to their spark plugs. The matter is being considered in Great Britain. Engineers in London say that the low wave lengths used for television are particularly susceptible to interference from the low wave radiations emitted by the electrical ignition systems of motor vehicles.

An explosion on the sun, loud enough to reach the earth, would not be heard by us until about 16 years afterward.

Long Journey On Raft

Trio Brave Hazardous Trip From North With Lumber

Three Albertans conquered the Saskatchewan river's corker-cure currents after a week's battle and brought to dock at Edmonton a 10,000-foot lumber raft from Buck Creek, 100 miles away. After selling the lumber they were returning for another consignment.

Must-asked Nick Fekete, Elmer Bakos, his son-in-law, and D. Combs spent 12 hours daily on the raft, going ashore to eat and sleep, and the journey required one week.

The first day they made 40 miles, but after that they had to man awkward sweeps to keep the craft clear of sand-bars, and could make only 15 miles daily.

One day they averted the raft to escape hitting a jagged rock and plunged into a sandbar. They strained all day backing it 100 yards upstream when they turned in for the night. In the morning they found the raft in ebb water, high and dry. There was nothing to be done but take it apart, dry the lumber and build it. Three times that work had to be done in three days, and then their food ran out.

I began to look for someone to help up," said Bakos, "when Nick suddenly spotted a man fishing off shore and we yelled to him to bring us food, which he did."

Bakos and Fekete had cut the spruce themselves at Buck Creek with an additional 170,000 feet which they had to leave behind until next trip. It took them four months to hew the massive trees out, sawed and trimmed.

Sounds That Escape Us

Microphone Picks Up Sounds Never Heard Before

Do you know that ants and spiders "talk"? That termites whistle? That flies scream? And that weevils clatter and bang while boring wheat grains?

They do, declares Jennie E. Harris, naturalist, in Good Housekeeping. "We've heard them because human ears are not attuned to these sounds, but if radio picks up its intricate apparatus, we may yet tune in on air orchestra, or listen to the rub of sap in the trees."

"Magnified powerfully, practically nothing is soundless," Miss Harris says. "Not even the air, nor a blade of grass growing. Our ears naturally embrace about eleven octaves. Music embraces seven. The cry of a bat is said to be an octave higher than the chirp of a sparrow. Ant music is shriller still. The microphone is picking up sounds never heard before, opening up to human ears a world of research as suddenly rationalized as the world the microscope opened up to the human eyes."—Kansas City Star.

Obviously Foolish

A man who recently returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast tells of an amusing conversation he had with a ducky porter on a train one evening.

"I suppose you are asked a lot of foolish questions by passengers?" he suggested.

"Yes, sir," replied the porter. "Ah has to answer a lot of them. The foolish question Ah've ever had to answer was asked me by a gentleman the other day. He was sitting on the observation platform on the back of the train. Ah went out there and 'wha' you think he asked me? He said: 'Porter, which way do I go to get to the dining-car?'"

CANCER RESEARCH No. 2

Cancer, in the opinion of the Cancer Council recently established in the United States, is to be a cleaving-house for authentic cancer information, "is the greatest public health problem before the world to-day." Its death-rate is nearly three times that of tuberculosis. Millions are being spent on cancer research yet there is still far too little money available for this work.

In whatever work of the kind undertaken no formal attempt should be made to regiment or organize research. It must be the work of a super-mind or dictator. No person is capable of directing the work of cancer research in the various fields involved—the fields of surgery, radiation, biology and chemistry. Research in cancer lies in the hands of the clinician, whether he be engaged in surgery or in the use of X-rays and radium, and in those of the laboratory worker.

The cancer cell has some special characteristics. It contains more sugar than the normal cell; it usually breaks down sugar in a different way from that in which the normal cell breaks down sugar. Yet it contains ferments which the normal cell contains and it does not vary essentially from normal cells growing at the same speed. It is probable that, before we find a means of stopping the rapid growth of a cancer cell, we must find a means of making it grow, or the reason why it grows.

We know, for example, that if the thyroid gland fails to grow (that is, fails to secrete its substance), the child will grow up an idiot (a cretin). On the other hand, if another gland (the pituitary) develops too much, the child grows to be a deformed giant (acromegaly). In these cases the body cells are under the influence of certain body juices, called hormones. But there is no evidence that the cancer cell is under the influence of these or other ductless glands. That is probably why it is a cancer cell.

It is well known that healthy normal cells are far more resistant to the effects of x-ray and radium than cancer cells. It is for this reason that x-rays and radium are valuable in treatment. It is for research to discover the reasons for all these things. Past success in the field of research offers high hope that the secrets of cancer will eventually be discovered.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 5

GOD REQUIRES SOCIAL JUSTICE

Golden text: As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise. Luke 6:31.

Lesson: Leviticus 19:1-18; 32-37.

Devotional reading: Amos 8:4-5.

Explanations And Comments

Solitude for the Poor, Leviticus 19:10. When you reap your harvest, you must not reap the fields to the very corners, nor gather the stray ears of the harvest. You must not glean your vineyard bare, nor pick up fallen grapes (Moffatt's translation). And the reason for this direction is that something of that harvest—the grain, the product of the vine, and the fruit of the tree—must be left for the poor and the stranger. The poor we have with us always, and we must share with them. Note the refrain, "I am Jehovah your God," which ends each precept in our text. It occurs sixteen times in this chapter.

The Rights of All To Be Considered, Leviticus 19:15. Your court of judgment shall judge righteously, showing no partiality to the poor, and you shall be just, and not deferring to the powerful man, just because he is powerful, neither the poor nor the rich are to be wronged because of their poverty or their wealth.

A plain warning lies here for an increasing class of reformers in our day, who loudly express their special concern for the poor, but who in their zeal for social reform and the diminishing of poverty are forgetful of righteousness and equity. It applies, for instance, to all who would affirm teach with Marx that capital is robbery, and yet quite ready for such plain and candid words, yet avoid, in any way, in order to right the wrong of the poor, to advocate legislation involving practical confiscation of the estates of the rich ("The Expositor's Bible").

Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, Leviticus 19:17, 18. You shall not hate your brother. His sin shall be a matter of concern to you, and you shall rebuke him lest you "bear sin because of him." In a way share his guilt by your failure to urge him to righteousness. For you shall believe, even if a man be overtaken in any trespass, ye who are spiritual restorers, that the sin of gentleness looking to thyself; lest thou also be tempted, Gal. 6:1.

When we are to take the law into our own hands, you are not to take vengeance, nor bear a grudge against your neighbor. You are to love your neighbor as yourself. See John 3:28 and Mt. 22:35-40. "What an admirable epitome of the whole law of righteousness, a mosaic anticipation of the very spirit of the Sermon on the Mount! Evidently, the same mind speaks in both alike; the law the same, the object and aim of the law the same. The law in Leviticus and in the Gospel. In this law we hear: 'Ye shall be holy; for I the Lord am holy'; in the Gospel we hear on the Mount: 'Ye shall be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect.'"

Easy Way To Collect

Hets Of Money-Lender In India Are Lucky

A most useful ghost is reported to be wandering about at Karimnagar, near Hyderabad, India. It is the ghost of a money lender known during his life as the "Shylock of Karimnagar," who had difficulty in collecting his debts when he lived, but whose ghost is having none now. The debtors, who owed several thousand rupees at the time of the money-lender's death, are reported to be rushing to pay their debts before the ghost pays them a visit. It appears that the debtors settled down after the money lender's death with that "come and collect it" expression for his heirs. Then one of them was visited by a ghost one night; and then another, and another, so the story goes. The heirs, who in a less credulous district might be credited with having something to do with the "ghost," are sitting back and collecting both capital and interest as fast as they can.

Daffodils For Christmas

Easy To Have Through New Method Used For Bulbs

Daffodils bloom in the garden for only a comparatively short season, but they are "in season" at the florists' shops for months. Experiments proved that bulbs could be made to bloom earlier by storing them at 50 degrees Fahrenheit for a month or more in August and September, just before planting them in the early fall in the pots or flats, in which they are to be forced in the home or greenhouse.

Scientists now a recognized method and dealers sell bulbs treated in this way for growing indoors or in greenhouses. Bulbs sold to home gardeners are not stored cold because it would promote too early blooming in the garden when flowers might be nipped by wintry weather. Thankfully, daffodils are possible, and it is comparatively easy to have plenty of fine quality daffodils for Christmas.

THE CANADIAN ADVENTURE TRIP OF BOB SIM, AN ONTARIO FARM BOY

No. 11 of a Series of 16 Letters

Bob sees "real" mountains for first time—pursues over Social Credit—visits Mormon town of Cardston—learns new farming method which preserves moisture.

Note: We do not assume responsibility for any of Mr. Sim's ideas—after all he's only twenty-one and his comments are his own.

The west of Alberta, you will remember, is the cross of St. George with a wheat field beneath, backed by a range of mountains with a log cabin in the background. It is a good picture of Alberta, for though the foothills and mountains may dominate the architecture of the landscape, agriculture is the foundation of the economic system. The entire population of the province is concentrated in the valley of the Red River of the North, in largely rural, although it has many thriving cities. Enough of that to travel of your caravaneers—a word of our own coinage.

Last week, remember, you left us at Lloydminster, half in and half out of Saskatchewan. From there we drove to Edmonton in the morning. From Edmonton we have gone south at our leisure until to-day we are in the heart of the prairie. A good latitude into Montana to visit the glaciers, and travel their famous routes. The Hamilton mountain and the Blue Mountains of Collingwood can be discounted. Then we reached the most dramatic of the mountains. Since under the stars almost six hundred miles north of our homes on the Old Ontario road, this week has been a most dazzling spectacle than the Northern Lights.

Edmonton—Seat of Social Credit

Bob's first encounter with Mr. Abernethy let me describe the attitude of the people to Social Credit. The attitude is a good one. Certain types of foam on tea will bring good fortune. Nobody will admit they believe it, yet most people try to get it out on a spoon. Just in case.

When we inspected the Alberta Assembly, the guide showed us the immense seating of the Social Credit party, with five lonely seats for the Opposition—the quintuplets they are called. Yet few will admit they believe in Social Credit. So many in public life has been more abused than Mr. Abernethy—Able they call him. He is a man of great energy, proves almost universally. The scriptural law is winter. In all our travels we have met only two staunch supporters of the Social Credit movement. One is a farmer south, the other a tourist. "Social Credit may be killed by big internationalism, but it is not the irreparable loss not only of Alberta but of the whole world."

Yet the government is in spite of all this, enough confidence from the people that they maintain office, and the administration of the country, would probably be returned to power if an immediate election were held. The people hate to admit they were fooled. Perhaps, but more than that, they like the idea of Social Credit. Who wouldn't? In addition to the people are extremely well informed, and they are not afraid to think they have a solution. The Wise Men in the East say "No." A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, perhaps these farmers and tradesmen know too little to change capitalism.

We sought Mr. Abernethy to question him. Each man behind a pillar of the provincial capital, in his arrival. He arrived at ten, a late hour to start the day methods, and the evening, and the morning, premier. Caesar could not have looked more astonished when confronted by the contemplation of the ancient capital. He posed for a picture, but declined the interview.

The Mountains and Dry Farming

"Mormon is a nickname," the elder told us, "but since it means a good people we carry it on. Our right name is Latter Day Saints." Our first attempt to get in their million dollar temple at Cardston was frustrated. Later we penetrated the Assembly Hall, where the elder lectured us on the principles basic to the faith. But we did not penetrate the inner sanctuary where pilgrims cannot go who drink tea, coffee or alcoholic liquors. Nor did we see the baptismal font which stands on the back of four green, life-size oxen. In this four ancestors of believers are baptized by proxy.

There are ten thousand Mormons in the Cardston district. This year their crops are good, although the rainfall is light. They have learned new farming method to me. The farm is not fenced as in the East, but is planted in twenty-foot strips, usually a mile long. These strips alternate crop and summer fallow. Curiously there do not plough under murelflow but double disc it. This makes a trash cover which helps to preserve the moisture.

My space is gone, so my story of the mountains must wait a week.

Mounties Will Keep Horses

The time may never come when Canada's red-coated mounted police are pictured astride a motor-bike instead of the traditional stily steed. Horses are most valuable in many phases of the work of Royal Canadian Mounted Police and probably never will be done away with entirely, says Commissioner Sir James H. MacBrien, who was visiting in Halifax.

HE WAS AFRAID TO CROSS A STREET

Lost His Nerve After 12 Months' Agony

Suffering from acute rheumatism in both his knees, twice, I was treated in hospital—twice without result—so unrelenting was the pain that I was afraid to cross a street—how readily every rheumatic sufferer will sympathize with this man. Read what he says.

"For 12 months, I suffered pain and misery with acute rheumatism in both my knees. Twice, I was treated in hospital—but it was no use. I could not walk up or down stairs. I was afraid to cross the street, for I had lost all confidence in myself. Fourteen days ago, I started taking Kruschen Salts, and already I am a new man. I can walk with a smart step, go up and down stairs with ease, and cross the street with complete confidence. My rheumatism is getting better every day."

In a good many cases, rheumatism cannot resist the action of Kruschen Salts, which dissolve the uric acid crystals of uric acid—often the cause of those aches and pains—and assist the kidneys to eliminate the poison through the natural channels.

THE YELLOW BRIAR

A Story of the Irish on the Canadian Countryside

By PATRICK SLATERS

By arrangement with Thomas Allen, Publisher, Toronto.

CHAPTER X—Continued

The excitement of these goings-on brought a touch of color to Betty's cheeks, and, at times, the household again enjoyed the habit of human laughter.

"I may write you, Paddy," she told me as she left, "and give you the proper table manners for eating fish."

The mother received bulky letters from her homesick young girl, but their contents were seldom matters for table discussion.

One evening, Mrs. Marshall chuckled as she bespoke our attention.

"Would you listen to this, you gentlemen of Mono?" said the lady, and she read:

"They always said the men in Toronto were good looking and fashionably dressed. Indeed, Ma, I don't think they are as good looking or as well dressed as our own men up in Mono."

William Marshall looked up from his newspaper. "Would you convey to your daughter, mother," said he, "the thanks of Patrick and her father for those kind words."

We had a thorough time that fall and winter drawing the material for our new farm house. The plan was copied, of course, from the stout dwelling on the 4th line of Markham, but the location of the house gave Mr. Marshall a good deal of thought. He often spoke to his wife about it, and one morning asked her to step out and look the situation over. Nancy's mind was occupied with the weekly batch of bread. She swung the upper section of the kitchen door open, and glanced out over the rolling farm land.

"Just suit yourself, William," said she, "put it anywhere . . . out there."

Mr. Marshall asked my opinion. "Let us build it, Mr. Marshall," said I, "no every room'll get a kiss of the sun; and a kitchen window should give the womenfolk a chance to be observing the road without leaving their dishes."

So the house faces south by southwest, and my old kitchen fronts the highway.

The new farm house brought a deal of comfort and a dash of pride to the members of the Marshall household. But we kept the family piled locked up behind the heavy, drawn curtains in the chilly parlour; and it stood around stealthily in there, during the Jacobsen days, waiting for the household sofa and the formal, springy-bottomed chairs—all of which, now grown shabby, are in use to-day as a living memorial of honest workmanship—and being careful, of course, not to shake the spindly-legged little table that held the casket of waxwork flowers Betty had made for us. The sad truth is that for generations the best room in an Ontario farm house stood closed up as a place of gloom, awaiting a death of a marriage feast.

But out in the great kitchen, the geraniums and fuchsias bloomed like love itself on their deep window sills, and neighbours dropped in, in plenty to crack nutcrackers and shorten the long winter evenings with their chat. The religious doctrines of the day got a thorough going over. An itinerant book peddler had been pushing around the corner the sale of "The Great Red Dragon," of "The Master Key to Prophecy," tasted the book myself, and its author impressed me as an ignorant and stupid person—but I let it go at that. However, when Paddy's feelings were not by to be hurt, Romish idolatry got its what-for in that kitchen. There was a fair sprinkling of Scottish Presbyterians in the district, and stout defenders were there to uphold John Calvin's cruel doctrine of the election of the saints and the other four points of reference with the Methodist creed. The Baptists, too, were sticking their heads above water, but their fenced-off communion table retarded for a time the growth of that great sect in the pioneer timbered lands of Canada and on the wide plains beyond the Mississippi. However, the issue joined between "the jacket wetters" and "the baby sprinklers" raised heated arguments in the Marshall kitchen. For some reason, I could not grasp, Mr. Marshall thought the fact that water descended from the sky on our heads instead of rising up to immerse our feet was a powerful argument in favor of infant baptism.

Doctrinal differences between the Mono Protestants may have been only skin-deep. Anyway I have always suspected as much since the time Isaac Cornish bolted the Methodist Connection. An active member of the Quarterly Board, the good man had been a noisy opponent of the Presbyterian Doctrine. At a Sunday morning service in the local Methodist church, Brother Cornish stamped down the aisle leading his numerous household to the family bench. The Cornishes always came last like the cow's tail.

At that moment, Rev. Mr. Berry was shoulder deep in his extended opening prayer. Despite the squeaking of boots, the minister waded right on through his discourse, only pausing to explain: "And, O Lord, here comes Isaac Cornish—late as usual!"

With an angry snarl the brother wheeled right about face, and tramped his family out again—thus giving further news to tell. Thereafter the Cornishes attended the Presbyterian church to hear Rev. Mr. Lewis preach the doctrine of the election of the saints.

However that may have been, a man's politics in those days were usually all one wool and a yard wide.

Nathaniel Carson and William Marshall were both liberal reformers—staunch, clear Grits, they called themselves—and they were faithful followers of George Brown and his Globe newspaper. When Mr. Carson was elected to the Marshall kitchen, he could cry: "Sanctuary!" Bob O'New Pittigo knew his manners better, of course, than to attack a visitor right in the bosom of the family. The dog would be excused from the meal of that man—and went outside to wait for him.

Those were the days of bitter politics in Canada, and of ugly sectional strife that left scars upon us. At the time the politicians and their quarrels loomed up large in the life of the Ontario countryside. And in judging the strength and temper of Canadian feeling, let us not forget the rock from which we were hewn and the pit from which we were dug. Those who are ignorant of the past are always fearful of the future. But you and I, who have fared over the rough roads, would be glad to go cheerily whistling down the smooth pavements of the morrow.

We usually had both sides of the arguments stoutly represented in that kitchen because Nancy Marshall was as hard-headed and constant a Conservative as her father before her, and, in her amiable way, she scoffed at the Mono reformers, and at all the dogmas of their creed.

"Tut! tut! woman," her husband would tell her, "you belong to the Middle Ages."

He never got in the last word in my hearing. But, like a wise wife, Nancy was content at times to hold a watching brief. She would cast a supercilious glance over the Globe newspaper, now and again, but merely to gather faggots to feed the fires of her contempt for the paper and its editor. For me, mostly, she read, she immersed herself in The Leader, a sophisticated journal that supported the Tory side. It tickled Nancy Truman pink, to find George Brown, the editor of The Globe, spreading his personal ambitions in large spurges on his front page.

"Ah, ha!" she would tell the enemy. "I see Brown has had another invitation to a free meal up in Zorra . . . the conceit of the man!" And in those days of personal journalism, the editor not only tooted his own horn, but he may have blown it with immodest vigor. I shall did not like George Brown—and that was that. She declared him to be a surly, bitter-minded scandal-monger. She smiled at the trustful, childlike faith her William and his cronies had in the honesty of the party paper. One of them, a Scotsman in the village, had trouble with his eyes in the fall of 1886, and his good wife read him the weekly paper. One evening she was jogging along diligently through the various news items in small type, and finally she read:

"A contract has been let for the construction of a candle over eight hundred yards long between the houses of water, large enough to permit an eleven foot draft."

"Tut! tut! woman, it can no be!" the sick man exclaimed. "A candle! . . . what length?"

"But it is here printed, Sandy," the wife declared, "I'll read it again."

"Well! well!" declared the astonished man, according to Mrs. Marshall, "if it were no The Globe, I'd no believe it!"

At that time George Brown had been the reformers of Upper Canada through abuses that called for remedy, and he had earned their trust and confidence. To make a successful reformer, a man must have an aggressive spirit and a biased turn of mind that lets in light on one side of the subject only. Such qualities usually make him a tiresome travelling companion on a long journey; but, they are specially ordained by nature for the purpose at hand. Even the little chick has, for the moment, a hard crust on its tender beak to help it peep the shell. There was a bitterly contested general election in Canada in the mid-winter of '87—what with snow-blocked roads, open voting, free liquor and heads that needed mending. In those days, elections were rough fights like a lacrosse match with no referee on the field. In the nearby hamlet of Brampton, the supporters of the Tory candidate rushed in their voters on the opening of the poll, taking complete possession of the booth by storm, and thus kept the other side out quite effectively on the opening day. Such a forcible showing of strength was thought to have an effect on the public mind, and many votes, as you know, are like fallen leaves that drift with the prevailing wind. No official list of qualified electors had been prepared beforehand for use in the election. Having their votes, the Tories for the moment spent their available voting strength, the Liberals set in, on the second day, to obstruct and retard the poll. Every Liberal who stuck his nose into the booth was subjected to a time-killing catbath as to his qualifications.

Something Worth Hearing

Music As Played By Gypsies In Hungary Is Music

Ed. Sullivan, in the New York Daily News, says you have never heard the full-throated sob of a violin you have heard a gypsy make his violin cry on the banks of the Danube . . . It is most thrilling at sunset, when purple shadows steal down from the hills of Buda and cover the river, and the only lights you see are the lights that etch the bridges that span the water separating Buda from Pest . . . It is at dusk that the Tzigane, the gypsy, comes to play most appealingly and their bands range from ten to forty pieces. . . . None of these gypsy musicians can read a note of music, or at least so the legend goes, but they play any selection you request. . . . Certain it is that they have no music in front of them, and play from memory. . . . Until you have heard these stringed bands play their haunting Tzigane melodies, life has cheated you of something very beautiful. . . . The brasses that have sighed across Danube plains for ever and a day again play for these violins and cellos come to life, and their music borrows the color of blue skies and orange sunsets. . . . You sit in the huge outdoor gardens, gravely playing your coffee and as the music throbs, you hear again the clattering hoofs of Attila the Hun stampeding down the wind. . . . Or fancy that once again the Turkish armies are storming the hills of Buda, their curved blades flashing in the cold moonlight.

The night life of Budapest is appreciated all over Europe, yet apart from these magnificent gypsy bands you get the night life pretty dull. . . . Most of the clubs here, with rare stupidity, forfeit the flavor of their own picturesque country in an attempt to copy Broadway night club life. . . . They feature jazz bands on the United States order, and you marvel at the incongruity of native Hungarian musicians playing American songs in this setting.

The publication of the 1937 edition of the Canada Year Book, published by authorization of the Hon. W. D. Scott, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is announced by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The Canada Year Book is the official statistical annual of the country and contains a thoroughly up-to-date account of the national resources of the Dominion and their development, the history of the country, its institutions, its demography, the different branches of production, trade, transportation, finance, education, etc.—in brief, a comprehensive study within the limits of a single volume of the social and economic condition of the Dominion. The 1937 Canada Year Book extends to over 1000 pages, dealing with all phases of the national life and more especially with those susceptible of statistical measurement. A statistical summary of the progress of Canada is included in the introduction. This gives a picture in figures of the remarkable progress which the country has made in the last century. The Dominion was taken in 1871, sixty-six years ago.

Attention may be called to some of the more important features of the present volume.

The treatment of the physiography of the country, has been almost entirely re-written and a special section on Economic Geology, prepared by P. J. Alcock, Ph.D., Mines and Geology Branch, Department of Mines and Resources, is included. The regular section on geology, which will be revised in the near future, has been completely re-written. A special article, "Faunas of Canada," prepared for this year book by R. M. Anderson, Ph.D., Chief of the Division of Biology of the National Museum, appears at page 29 to 52. The results of the Quinquennial Census of 1936 are included in the Statistical Section of Population, Chapter V, and a special section on Occupations of the Canadian People. The treatment of data from the 1931 census which appeared mainly in the 1934-35 Year Book but has been included in later material in the 1936 Year Book. Agricultural statistics of the Quinquennial Census are included in Chapter VII. Agriculture—which also includes a short article on "Agricultural Progress in Canada" from the Dominion Experimental Farms System."

A list of special articles appearing in the Canada Year Book of the year 1936 will be found at page VI, immediately preceding the map of Canada.

The accession of King George VI to the Throne and the Coronation of the King on May 12 are marked by the reproduction as frontpiece of an official photograph of the ceremony. The Dominion Abbey, by official portraits of King George and Queen Elizabeth, and an excerpt from His Majesty's address to his peoples, delivered after the Coronation on May 13, 1937.

Persons ordering the Year Book may obtain it from the King's Printer, Ottawa, as long as the supply lasts, at the price of $1.50, which covers merely the cost of paper, printing and binding. By a special contract, a number of copies of paper-bound copies have been set aside for ministers of religion, bona fide school teachers, and other persons who may obtain copies at the nominal price of 50 cents each.

AN OLD MAN'S CORONATION

When I went into London for the crowning of the King, The crowd along the route was such I could not see a thing: So I turned into an empty park and sat beneath a tree; And in that leafy solitude a blackbird sang to me.

I sat upon a green park seat, deserted and alone. Beneath a chestnut canopy—a king upon his throne.

A king, at least as happy as any other king; And, royal-hearted as a boy, I heard the blackbird sing.

—Wilfred Gibson, in the London Observer.

Peculiar Frog In London Zoo Hears With Its Ears

Visitors at the London zoo are greatly attracted by a frog recently imported from Brazil. When stroked by his keeper he howls like a baby and tears run down his face. When he inhales himself he looks like a rubber toy. To the attendants, however, his most arresting feature is that he hears with his eyes. When he buries himself he leaves only his hooded eyes above ground, and the hooded sensitively pick up sound so that he knows when anything comes his way.—London Tri-Bita.

Be silent all flesh before the Lord, Zech. 2:13.

Be earth will all her scenes withdrawn; Let noise and vanity be gone; In secret silence of the mind, My heaven, and there my God, I find.

There is hardly ever a complete silence in our soul, God is talking to us almost incessantly. Whenever the sun is of the world die out in the soul or sink low then we hear God. We do not always hear because of the noise hurry and distraction which life causes as it rushes on. The soul is quiet loving God and keeping a calm mind in spite of all the imaginations that present themselves.

The Main Ingredient

Choke Cherries Used By Indians In Making Pemican

The Indian and Metis housewife has been busy picking choke cherries, of which there was a small crop in the Qu'Appelle valley. This berry is the main ingredient in making pemican and was the only food used by the coureurs de bois and canoe men playing the Red and Churchill rivers, freighting the Hudson's Bay Company goods from York Factory to Fort Garry some 200 years ago.

These berries are crushed between two stones and dried in the sun, then made up in small cakes. A real meal is enjoyed by putting half a dozen of these cakes in a frying pan for 20 minutes on the stove, adding some water, and then melted fat with sugar and flour.

If one's diet has anything to do with his general health, the Indians must have the secret as there is very little cancer among the plains Cree Indians. However, they have not as yet found a diet to prevent tuberculosis, although the disease was unknown to them before the advent of civilization.

Civic Government

Can Be Administered In Two Ways

Discussing the New York mayoral situation, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler makes this observation: "There is no Republican way of governing a city and no Democratic way. There is just a good and a bad way, an honest and dishonest way." That has about comprehends it all. Political parties may play a useful part in presenting candidates for the choice of the electorate, but once the choice has been made, the question of whether or not the city is well governed depends almost wholly on the personal equation. It is the character, integrity, ability and capacity to render disinterested services to the community that determines whether or not the taxpayers receive full value for the assessments levied against them.—Hartford Courant.

The First Rule Of Duty

Courteous Treatment Shown By Officials To Tourists At Border Points

So far this season the tide of incoming tourist travel is in excess of that of last year. That, of course, means more work and responsibility for officers of the department stationed at boundary points. That a high standard of service is being rendered is evident, and the army of visitors is made to feel that Canada is a hospitable country with much to please those seeking recreation. Courteous treatment at border points has become the first rule of duty of customs officers. "Life is not so short but that there is time enough for courtesy." That is as true to-day as it was in the days of the Pilgrims. If the city's inhabitants had to depend on the eggs raised in New York State, they'd have to get along on rations of only a dozen eggs every six months per person.
